

Illegal Immigration

We are a nation of immigrants - that cannot be argued. However, it has only been in the last several decades that we have become a nation of “illegal” immigrants.

I am amazed at the liberals who proclaim this mantra in defense of every illegal immigrant. That would be the same liberals who demand we educate the children of illegal immigrants, who demand we provide health care for illegal immigrants, who demand we provide protection to illegal immigrants with laws that circumvent the very laws we have to protect our nation from illegal immigrants.

And then they are astounded when we demand that government do something to protect our borders. If the rule of law is to have any meaning than it must be utilized to protect our borders. We expect our citizens to play fair, and abide by the rules of our nation. We should demand and expect no less from those seek to enter our country.

The generations of immigrants who entered our country in the 19th and 20th centuries did so by following our laws. Ellis Island wasn't simply a gateway where they gave you a pass to the land of opportunity – it was a choke point where you were required to prove that you had indeed complied with our rules and laws.

If we don't get control of our borders, we will lose control of our nation.
